The Walk: It was a lovely August morning, not many of those in a most disappointing summer when I arrived in Starkholmes to begin this most anticipated walk. I had often driven through Matlock and Matlock Bath along the A6 Derby Road looking up towards the Heights of Abraham and the limestone cliffs of High Tor not thinking about what it would be like to walk around the tops and look down.

Between Matlock and Cromford the River Derwent forges its way through a spectacular, thickly wooded limestone gorge. At Matlock Bath it jostles for space with the bustling A6 highway, the railway to Derby and a string of three-storey houses, shops and amusement parlours, built by the Victorians, who flocked here to take in the healing spa waters.
